Overflow Town Meeting

RECORD TURNOUT

REJECTS SCHOOL ADDITION

Mattapoisett's Annual Town Meeting shoved off slowly in consideration of the heavy money articles at the beginning of the warrant. In the first eight articles, $1,964,733 was appropriated. Increased salaries for seasonal and part time employees of 5% were voted as well as 5% increases for treasurer, town clerk and highway surveyor. Amendments to the Personnel By-Law will show step increases for the Police Department and town labor force.

The Special Town Meeting, held on Tuesday, brought out an overflow crowd of voters. The record-breaking turnout included 708 voters plus other non-voting visitors. The vote was 357 against and 351 for the school addition. The measure needed a 2/3 majority to pass. On February 17th, 7 weeks ago, the same measure was rejected by a vote of 173 for to 146 against. One year ago, Mattapoisett voters considered the addition and the vote was 230 no and 155 yes.

The overflow crowd was divided between Bristol Auditorium and the gymnasium. The gym was connected by mike and speaker to the floors so that voters there could speak and hear the proceedings. Berthold Putman presided in the gym as assistant to the moderator, Donald Fleming. The school had a full and complete explanation by committee spokesmen who urged that the townspeople take advantage of the depressed area reimbursement by the state of 65% on principal and interest and vote the school addition. Charles B. Dunn expressed the general consensus when he said that the 65% didn't thrill him because, "it's still my money". In the course of the questioning and explanation, it was explained that the two basement rooms originally set up for the kindergarten would need $11,000 worth of rehabilitating to meet State requirements. It was also stated that the two special classes of 6 to 8 pupils each are occupying rooms at Center School. Mr. Paul Alves, chairman of the School Committee, was questioned closely on the plans for occupancy of the 12-room addition. He said taking on the burden of the Junior High School when it starts operation shortly; the town is also committed to a share in the building and operation of the Regional Vocational School.

The vote was by check list ballot and proceeded swiftly and smoothly in spite of the number of people involved.

In other action, an article was passed to allow purchase of flood insurance to continue to be underwritten by the United States Government. Since this article will have a permanent and expensive effect on home building in flood plain areas, much discussion preceded the vote, as the town meeting sought to learn just how they would be affected. Town Counsel Leonard Perry said that the article would not go into effect until the study by the United States Corps of Engineers was completed and they determined the flood plain boundaries. New construction would be then bound by the building code inside those boundaries.
Confusion was caused when proponent
George W. Evans indicated that code conformance was immediate. The building code addition finally was adopted.

Landfill Committee, then took the floor to deplore the practice of allowing Special Town Meetings to interrupt the continuity of the Annual Town Meeting. He said that he had been prepared to give a complete report on the proposed dump but that he was leaving town for 10 days. The town meeting voted to allow him the courtesy of the floor out of context. He outlined the proposed purchase of Tinkham Hill land for approximately 150.6 acres at $60,240. Mr. Locke said that negotiation with the three owners had resulted in the figure of $400. per acre. In response to a question, Mr. Locke said that the land was assessed for $25.00 per acre. He said that he could offer no explanation for assessing but that he considered the $400. a good figure, supported by volunteer assessment by Frank F. Sylvia, John D. Gibbons and Earle G. Boardman. He said that the contractor for 195 will rough in a road as part of the agreement which allowed the stripping of the Ma-excellent performances by the student cast of the Broadway hit. The music and color of this show is just the vehicle for the young performers. Their enthusiasm and energy sparked the happy pace from beginning to end. C. C. Dyer performed brilliantly as Dolly. Her personality was electric as she captured the audience and dominated the stage in this demanding central role. Dolly is the catalyst that makes this show react and C. C. proved to have the chemistry in abundance.

Richard Helfand, as Horace Vandergelder, was very well cast in a role that he performed extremely well. He had good comic touch and timing, particularly in the exchanges with Dolly as she maneuvered him into a proposal. His delivery of "It Takes a Woman" was another high point of the show. The day was surely saved by the outstanding performance of Catherine Langevin. She stepped into the part of Irene Molly on the day before the first performance. Sally Jones, who had been cast in the role since rehearsal started in January, became too ill to appear. Catherine took the script home to learn on Wednesday afternoon and appeared in the major supporting role on Thursday evening. She was great. No one would have known that she had not studied for the part from the beginning. She performed several key singing and dancing sequences to perfection and possessed one of the truest and strongest voices on the stage. Catherine received an ovation for a truly remarkable performance. In a second switch, Jonni Mathieson stepped into the role vacated by Catherine and was very funny as Ernestina Money. Jonni also made her sudden appearance letter perfect. Jeff Dunn appeared in the central role of Cornelius Hackl and performed very well. He and Milton Vaughan as Barnaby carried the action of the story with deft comic action. They both appeared in several major song and dance routines, with high spots of "It Takes a Woman" and "Elegance".

Kim Randall and Scott Pare were very good in the parts of Ermengarde and Ambrose Kemper. The excellent cast included Lisa Gurney as Minnie Fay; Heather Gurney as Rose; Steve Whitney as Rudolph; Jamie Bradley as Stanley; David Harpin as the cook; and a surprise performance by Mr. Robert Gardner as the judge.

In the chorus were: Ellen Adams, Jackie Sylvia, Ruth Stephan, Kim Almeida, Tina Francis, Barbara Larcom, Robin Hunt, Kay Pagenkopf, Holly Gifford, Ben Dunn, Mark Roberts, Doug Monteiro, Maigo Cabrera, Barbara Kobak, Jonni Mathieson, Beth Lowery, Harlene Fearing, Cathy German, Kim Barry, Gina Setteducatti, Marianne Marso, Mike Vaughan, Dan Hunt, Manuel Monteiro and Stephen Mouse.

The show was directed by Nancylee Gaucher who was also responsible for the staging of "Oliver", "George M" and "West Side Story". She accomplished the remarkable feat of welding inexperienced young people into consistently polished performers. "Dolly" will be remembered as one of her finest.

"Hello, Dolly" is a wonderful show. It has the kind of music that you go home humming. The cast, director, musicians and all of the supporting people who mounted this performance can be certain that it will be remembered with pleasure and pride as one of the finest and most memorable in the series of Old Rochester musical shows.

The orchestra, under the direction of Gary Thomas, adds a luster to the show that gives it a depth and fullness that approaches a professional performance. This background is the blend of many talented musicians under fine direction, making the complicated accompaniment seemingly effortless and smooth.

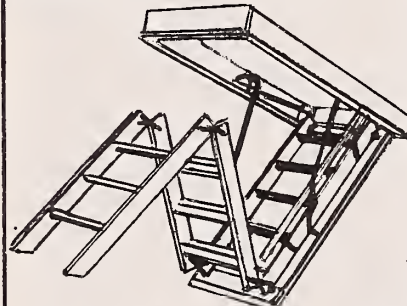

The stage decoration was very effective and was the product of members of the Art Department.

Managing to get your money from account to account should be as easy as 1,2,3...4.

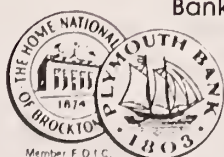

If you're a busy businessman or a harried housewife, you have all you can do to manage getting your money from account to account so that you can pay bills and buy your needed products.

Wouldn't it be easier if someone did all that for you? Of course it would. The trick is to be able to transfer money at will from, say, your checking account to your savings account so it will earn good interest for a good cause. Also, if you could pay your installment loan by a direct charge to your checking account each month, it would save the inconvenience of running to the bank twelve times a year. Think of the time saved on your club accounts each week if you didn't have to go in person to make your weekly payment.

In other words, if you could put all your hard earned money in a central checking account you could make the most of it. Then either automatically or as you determine, transfer the money out to savings or loans or club accounts—fast and easy.

That's the way banking should be. As easy as 1, 2, 3...4. And next week we'll show you how Plymouth-Home will do all that for you. It's our idea to answer customers' needs. We're sure it'll be the easiest way ever thought of to manage your money.

Bank where it counts.

CLOTHING DRIVE SUCCESS

The students of Old Hammondtown Schol helped many needy children last week by having a successful clothing drive. The drive only lasted from April 3 - 7, but in that short period of time students filled 208 bags of a possible 250. This was the first time ever that a Mattapoisett school has held a drive of this type. The students of Old Hammondtown School would like to thank the Presto Press for all its help, but most importantly all the people who contributed to the drive. The students are also deeply grateful to Hemingway Transport Inc. who have offered to transport the clothing from the school.

Art Center Activities

EXHIBIT AT ART CENTER

Cecil Clark Davis paintings, on loan from Tabor Academy, are on exhibit at the Cecil Clark Davis Gallery of the Marion Art Center through April 28th.

One of the highlights of the social season in Marion in 1899 was Cecil Clark's wedding at St. Gabriel's Episcopal Church. Many celebrities of the Art, Theater and social worlds were guests including Ethel Barrymore, who was maid of honor; Maude Adams and Charles Dana Gibson. From her home on Water Street she accompanied her author and war correspondent husband to South Africa, the Congo, Manchuria and Cuba.

An authority on raising and showing dogs, Mrs. Davis was also an able equestrian, tennis player and champion billiard player. Once a student of John Singer Sargent, she became a noted portrait painter and received many awards both in this country and abroad for her work.

Sippican Pomona

SIPPICAN CHORAL GROUP SINGS IN EASTER PAGEANT

Miss Wareham

The Miss Wareham Scholarship Pageant, which will take place on the evening of May 20th at the Gilbert D. Bristol Auditorium of Old Rochester Regional High School, is again being sponsored by the Wareham Area Chamber of Commerce.

This year's theme of the pageant, as announced by the Pageant Director, Rita L. Blair, will be "Desiderata-The Child of the Universe" and will feature the Miss Wareham Chorus and joined by the reigning queen, Miss Cindy Caradimos, Miss Wareham 1971.

It is of importance to all interested candidates that the franchised area is realized. Eligible girls may compete from the following towns: Wareham, Marion, Mattapoisett, Carver, Rochester, Middleboro, Plymouth, Bourne and all of Cape Cod. This is one of the largest areas in the state to be represented at the Miss Massachusetts Pageant held in July in Attleboro. Any girl who is interested in furthering her career through scholarships should consider the Miss Wareham Pageant as her opportunity to success. This is a local preliminary to the Miss America Pageant and not unbelievable that Miss America could be "found" right here. Those desiring further information should contact Rita L. Blair, 295-1482 or 295-1665, for an application.

All contestants will compete in the following categories: personal interview, swimsuit, talent, evening gown - all of which will be handled by an impartial but qualified panel of judges.

As in past years, trophies, gifts and special awards will be presented to the winners. The coveted Miss Congeniality trophy will be presented by last year's winner, Miss Kay Fernandes of Wareham; and all contestants will be the recipients of the official Miss America charm.

All interested candidates, 18-29, single, possessing charm, poise, talent and personality and the desire to further their careers should contact Rita L. Blair, 23 Tremont Rd., Wareham.

Remember the date - May 20, 1972, when Miss Wareham 1971 Cindy Caradimos will crown her successor.

EDUCATORS' CONFERENCE

Four educators serving the Old Rochester Region and School Union were key participants in the "Middle School Educators' Conference" held March 25 at the White Cliffs Hotel in Plymouth. Participating were Albert Jenney, assistant superintendent for the District; Robert C. Gardner, director for Junior High School administration for the District; Jack Cummings, principal of the Rochester Memorial School; and Mike Ward, associate principal of the Sippican School in Marion.

Planned by the Massachusetts Department of Education's Project EFF Middle School Advisory Committee and the Rhode Island Staff Development Cooperative, the all-day conference had as its theme "The Middle School Movement Today". Keynote speaker was Dr. Charles Richter, superintendent of Schools in West Hartford, Connecticut, whose remarks provided the impetus for productive dialogue in the day's small group discussions.

All four Old Rochester educators served as group discussion leaders. Supt. Jenney's group topic was "Mini-courses: Intra and Extra Curricular"; Mr. Gardner's "Utilization of Para professionals and/or Volunteers"; Mr. Cummings', "The Open Concept Applied"; and Mr. Ward's, "Team Teaching: Variations of ...".

More than 300 Middle School educators at all levels and teacher training faculty from colleges and universities throughout the six-state area attended.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE

James M. Pasquill, director of instruction at the Old Rochester Regional High School, and Philip F. Devaux, the school's director of curriculum, recently attended the 27th annual conference of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development in Philadelphia. Theme of the conference was "From the Kerner Report to the Year 2000: Action for the 70's".

Built into the conference was a broad spectrum of activities, including action laboratories where participants worked together for the three-day period on highly specialized projects, a series of thematic sessions covering both supervisory and curricular concerns, several special sessions on supervision and curriculum topics, and team workshops dealing with specific problems selected by the participants.

Mr. Pasquill and Mr. Devaux selected as a workshop project the development of a plan for the reorganization of the Old Rochester Junior High School. Both directors had opportunity in the workshop to exchange ideas with other educators who are engaged in similar reorganizational activities. Both
